Supporting employers with mental health at work

Three out of five employees in the UK have experienced mental health issues. Able Futures can give employers the tools, information and advice that they need to support mental health at work and staff working in many different roles in all sorts of workplaces.

With Able Futures employers can develop ways to support employees and apprentices when their mental health fluctuates, remove barriers and stigma around mental health issues at work and address problems if they arise. Able Futures gives employers:

_A local Business Account Manager to help you embed mental health awareness and support in your business.

_A suite of marketing and communications materials to promote the Able Futures service to your staff.

_Virtual information sessions to inform staff about support available from Able Futures.
